Our local church puts on evenings for us from the local estate. We're noisy and a bit crazy but it's cool. I like the people.

Lots of churches are wondering how they can do more with young people, but they depend on people like you to make it happen.

Young people growing up in church need a safe space to grow in their faith. They're living in a world where being a Christian makes them the odd one out and which is often critical and even hostile towards that faith. Youth work in churches can make all the difference and helps them find the confidence and support they need at the point where it would be easy to walk away.

Beyond the church, young people in our communities are growing up in a world where there is hardly any opportunity to explore the big questions of life or get help with some of the pressures of being a teenager. A hundred years ago, nearly 80% of teenagers were connected with a church where some of that could happen. Now it's less than 3%. Lots of churches are thinking about how they could do more, but they don't know where to start. The kinds of groups and activities that many of us grew up with in church no longer seem relevant, so what will work instead?

Whatever churches do to help young people, it's likely they'll depend on volunteers to make it happen. But helping run any kind of youth work can be pretty intimidating. What kind of groups work? How do you help teenagers deal with some of the issues they're facing and answer the questions they have? What kind of person is suitable to be a volunteer? What age do you have to be and what experience might you need?

The good news is that the church needs people just like you. There's no age limit, and there's no particular type of experience. Above all, young people want to meet adults who listen and care.

Training and support are important for every volunteer, whatever your role. That's why we've created Youthscape Essentials. It's a 10-week course for everyone who is helping with young people at their church. It's also a perfect starting point for those thinking about getting involved.

Over 10 sessions, you'll discover more about young people's lives and experiences, learn new skills and deepen your own faith. It's for those who've been helping with the youth work for years, and for those of us just starting out. It makes no assumptions about your age, your background, your experience or your confidence. Youthscape Essentials is a safe and rewarding way to be able to do more for young people. Join us this summer as we learn together.

Meet some volunteers

Hi, I'm Sasha and I run a youth group at my church. I really enjoy working alongside young people, seeing their potential and journeying with them as they come into their own. I get to see what God is doing in their lives. As a youth leader I have a completely unique role. I have opportunities to serve them that their parents and teachers don't have. Young people don't care how old you are or what you know, they just want someone to really listen to them and walk alongside them. I would say to anyone thinking about volunteering with young people to just get involved. You won't regret it.

Hello, I'm Elisabeth and I cook with young people who are really struggling at school. Many of them have never learned to cook and never sit down with their family to eat. I started with the vision of providing these things for young people, and I now host a group for a day each term at my house, where we cook a two course meal, set the table and share a meal together. It's amazing to see the transformation in those taking part. I also regularly cook for young people at Youthscape's building. I believe that the most important thing that adults can do is to prepare the next generation appropriately and well for the rest of their lives. These young people don't need anything complicated; they just need role models to nurture them and give them attention, love and discipline.

I have attended several training courses over the years, but I have never been to one that not only provides practical steps, but also looks at different insights, as well as reflecting on our practice too. I have learnt so much.
